'D' Club, Student Council Set Homecoming Plans

Like 'Ark', UMD's Decks Crowded; Enrollment Figures Smash Records

Noah's ark had nothing on UMD—in respect to the numbers that crowded its deck.

Although exact figures have not yet been released by the office of the registrar, the enrollment has hit an all-time high. The final mark is expected to be close to 1,500 students. When compared with 1945-46 records the increase is more than 300 per cent. About 43 per cent of the total enrollment, over 600, are freshmen.

Veterans make up over half of the students. This figure might go a little higher if veterans who are saving their G.I. privileges for professional schools were listed in the figures.

The faculty has been enlarged to take care of the additional students. Thirty new members relieve the load on the overburdened staff of last year.

Conversion of the school from a teachers' college to a branch of the University of Minnesota accounts for the increase. Among the new majors offered in the new curriculum, business administration and psychology are especially popular.

Thirty Instructors Join UMD Staff; Two New Departments Are Added

Philosophy and business administration, two new departments at UMD, are headed by Dr. Henry J. Ehlers and Richard O. Sielaff, respectively. Dr. Ehlers, former member of the philosophy department at the State College of Education, La Grande, Ore., studied for his doctorate at the University of Pittsburgh.

From Hamline university where he was associate professor of business administration, Mr. Sielaff, M.A., University of Minnesota, brings both academic distinction and practical experience in public accounting and merchandising.

Guild Players Meet, Announce Productions For Ensuing Year

The University Guild Players held their first meeting Wednesday evening, Oct. 1. Dancing and refreshments followed the meeting.

According to J. C. Converse, adviser, five plays will be given by the Guild this year. They are: "Ah, Wilderness," "Love Rides the Rails," "On Borrowed Time," and "Aladdin's Lamp," a children's theatre production. The presentation, "Fatal Weakness," has not yet been released by Samuel French, but efforts are being made to obtain rights for its staging this season.

Plans were made by Guild members to sell coffee and sandwiches in the main building for the convenience of the students.

Mr. Converse has invited any student to become a member of the Guild. "It is not necessary that he be taking speech or have intentions to act in any one of the plays," he stated.

Ward Evans, president, announced that other officers will be elected at the next meeting of the organization.

University of Minnesota and Dr. A. A. Sandin heads the division of education.

A graduate of Duluth State Teachers college, Dr. McEwen comes to UMD from University of Minnesota where he has both studied and taught.

Mr. Porter, M.A., University of Wisconsin, hails from our neighboring state where he has been teaching in University High school, Madison.

Dr. Alspach completed work on his doctorate at the State University of Iowa where he has been teaching since 1928.

The new chairman of the psychology department, Dr. Johnson, studied at Columbia university, N. Y. and taught at the University of Illinois prior to coming to UMD.

Dr. Chamberlain received his Ph.D. at Clark university, Worcester, Mass. He taught at Northern Illinois State Teachers college, DeKalb, Ill., until he

Queen Election To Open Festivities; Game, Dance Will Climax Week

Feverish activity characterizes preparations for the first UMD homecoming, Saturday, Oct. 18.

Rushing arrangements for a pep-lively bonfire, dance, and election of homecoming queen are Mary Jane Killam and George McNamara, leaders and the WAA and D clubs.

A Queen of Athletics will be elected by the students at an assembly meeting Wednesday. All nominations must be handed in to the D club by Friday, Oct. 10. Tom Theborge, election chairman, has announced.

Headquarters for welcoming alumni of the school will be set up at the Hotel Duluth. A reception committee will be present from 4 to 7 p. m. Friday.

That same evening a bonfire at Chester Bowl is scheduled for 7:30 p. m. John Braff is chairman of the committee arranging for this traditional symbol of school spirit.

The homecoming parade will form at the Court house at 10 a. m., Saturday morning. Marchers and motorcade will then proceed through the downtown area. Campus groups are already working on floats that will give the parade a spectacular touch. The committee in charge hopes to award prizes for outstanding floats. To be eligible they should be entered with Dale Nelson or Jim Hastings, chairman of the parade.

Remodeling of Tweed Changes Atmosphere

Art appreciation classes down at Tweed hall have emerged from the coal bin. The basement is now peopled with neophyte sculptors turning out abstract designs. Students are smoking in the one-time bathroom.

Miss Margaret St. George, head of the art department, is about to break out into print.

Mr. Bones, the skeleton, has come out of the closet and is posing for abstracts of bones in drawing classes when he isn't inspiring anatomy lectures in life drawing.

Art appreciation students have been moved to third floor. The rooms have been converted so that economics and history classes may be accommodated there as well. One of the huge, luxurious bathrooms on third floor will be used as a lounge when the fixtures are removed. Murals from the old smoke hole in Washburn will decorate the room.

"Challenge to Talent," by Miss St. George, scheduled to appear in Design magazine, features photographs of drawings made by Carl Olsen and Daryl Wagner in art classes last year.

Another article, "Art Sells Music," also by Miss St. George, will appear in Every Day Art. Color reproductions of record album covers made in the commercial art class illustrate her article.

Lutheran Students Hold Get-Acquainted Picnic

Opening their activities for the year, the Lutheran Students' association held a get-acquainted picnic at the Chester Bowl field-house on the evening of Oct. 2.

Mabel Schauland, president of the club, was in charge of the affair which featured refreshments, games, and singing. She was assisted by Joyce Johnson and Elsie Norha.

Intervarsity Members Hosts at Splash Party

The UMD Christian Fellowship began its round of activities with a splash by sponsoring a successful party at the Boys' "Y" downtown on Friday evening, Oct. 3. In addition to swimming and ping pong, other games were played and the usual refreshments served.

Christian Fellowship is an inter-denominational christian organization affiliated with the International Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship whose primary purpose is to provide for the student's spiritual life.

President Schedules Newman Club Meeting

Donovan Mayne, president of the Newman club, has announced that there will be a special meeting of the organization on Thursday, Oct. 9, at 8 P. M. Former members of the club are requested to meet at the library of the Holy Rosary cathedral, 29th Ave. East and 4th street.

Work of Personnel Services Makes

Housing Shortage No Problem at UMD

You may not know it, but it took a lot of hard work to find a place for out-of-town students to hang their hats and rest their heads while attending the university here in Duluth.

It all began last summer when Dr. Palmer Grayer, student counselor, made a series of speeches to service organizations and civic groups throughout the city. Many of the people who had worked so diligently to have the old Teachers' college become a branch of the university felt an obligation to its students and graciously opened their homes to them.

Miss Harriet Harrison, dean of women, who assisted Dr. Grayer, reported that progress was slow in the beginning, but each time when the situation looked particularly gloomy, a new wave of listings would come in, making possible the placement of each student who had applied for a room.

There were a surprising number of listings within six to eight blocks of the main building.

Some vacancies were for one student alone, others were double rooms. Accommodations were available to some groups of three who wished to stay together.

The greatest problem was that of finding homes for married veteran students. Many such students were unable to enter college, because of the apartment shortage, and others who had been here previously were forced to discontinue their studies because landlords would not accept tenants with children.

Students who are staying in a pretty nice place should direct thanks to Dr. Grayer and Miss Harrison for their persistence, to the number of public-spirited citizens for their cooperation and to the even larger number of hay-fever sufferers who found themselves relieved of their affliction and returned to their homes in different parts of the country just in time for school to open.

Students couldn't have had nearly the trouble in finding a place to live that they had during the summer!

Directness Will Be Key In Shaping

Statesman Policy

The STATESMAN recognizes that this newspaper belongs to all of the students, that its staff members are merely instruments for the expression of college sentiment, and that the students deserve to receive a clear-cut statement of policy from their newspaper.

Each issue will contain, usually, two editorials. One will treat a pertinent college subject, the other will discuss some question of national or international significance.

School problems will be investigated and reported with candor and sincerity. No effort will be made to withhold constructive criticism. In controversial campus matters each side of an issue will be presented by one of its chief protagonists, after which the STATESMAN will publish its own views. These conclusions shall be based entirely upon the merit of the cases, without regard for the personalities or groups involved, and without equivocation.

Students are forming positive ideas about world-wide problems. It is only natural, therefore, that expression of student opinion not be limited to the confines of our university.

The national and international questions are to be dealt with as they relate to society as a whole, rather than as they affect the fortunes of any political party. The paper must, of necessity, avoid partisan political implications.

With the preceding principles constantly in mind, the STATESMAN will continue to discharge its obligation to the student body.

New Status Demands More Activity

Just about everybody in town did a little wondering last summer about "that new University Branch," and, as might be expected, they came up with a lot of different opinions. From the downright skeptic who suspected a mere promotion deal with no advance in educational standards to the dreamer who was surprised that her Willie couldn't get his Ph.D. here, Duluthians pondered, one and all, on their new neighbor.

Looking into things during the first few not-so-hecktic days on the campus, we are happily far closer to the dreamer than to the skeptic. The face-lifting job on Old Main, the big improvement in the handling of Veterans' affairs, and the big boost in the faculty numbers, all merit praise.

Much has been done by the faculty and administration to create the air of a real university, but we need to make strides in other fields too. We need a paper that will compete with the best campus sheet in the country. We need plenty of support from the student body, and to make our paper good there has to be plenty of action in all fields of endeavor.

The young DFL has formed a chapter on the campus. Perhaps a group of young Republicans could follow suit, and we would get a really intelligent airing of political issues. The old cry to get behind the athletic teams will have to be sounded again. Forums and public discussions should be held by students interested in social and economic problems.

Many departments of the university brought distinction to DSTC in the old days. With a little extra effort by the students, all departments can go far toward making UMD a valuable asset, not only to Duluth, but to the state and nation as well.

DEAR EDITOR

Editor:

The long skirt is the best thing to hit this campus since the "U" took over. No longer is there any excuse for low marks. I predict that men with straight "C" averages will now appear in the "A" and "B" ranks. From here on, the fullest attention will be paid to lectures and such absorbing topics as blood clots in the mature angleworm. Never again will a set of lovely limbs cause attention to wander. Why? Because no longer will lovely limbs be visible. Anthropologists will find that in the year 1947, women ceased to be women—merely sacks with heads.

John Milne.

Sir:

The handling of books in the veterans' library and the campus bookstore is as loused up as a Chinese fire drill. The veterans have no way in the world of knowing what books are available or when they will be available without making long and often fruitless trips out here.

In the campus bookstore they are charging one-half price for a book in poor condition. This may seem like a good way to get rid of useless merchandise, but in another light it is cruel profiteering. Goodness knows we have enough of charging what the traffic will bear in the world outside without carrying the practice over to schools.

Digusted.

Long Skirts? Gals Say 'Maybe,' Guys Say 'No'

You femme fatales—lend an ear! Want to rate with the UMD male population? Then keep those skirts at their present length. In a recent poll the question, "Do you like the new longer skirts?" was put to 302 men and 130 women. The reaction was sharply divided according to sex as evidenced by the following figures:

Do you like the longer skirts?
Men	Yes	No
Freshmen.....	18%	82%
Sophomores.....	22	78
Seniors.....	28	72
Average.....	22	78
Women	Yes	No
Freshmen.....	65%	35%
Sophomores.....	70	30
Juniors.....	50	50
Seniors.....	78	22
Average.....	66	34

"If skirts have the split along the side, they're not too bad," remarked one freshman. A senior woman ventured to say, "I don't care if they wear them down to the ankles." But a word of caution, girls, there's a "Jack the Snipper" on the loose, threatening to "take care" of those too long skirts.

Student Sees Rehearsal Behind the Iron Curtain

Joe Baskovich was 11 years old in 1932 when his mother took the family to Yugoslavia. They settled in the Croatian province of Dalmatia, on the Adriatic Sea. Joe's father remained in Duluth, and the family was reunited here in June, 1946. Joe attended school during his stay in Yugoslavia, continuing his studies through the war, when his section was under Italian occupation. Joe, a major in social studies at UMD, has some interesting observations on Yugoslavia to pass on to STATESMAN readers.

Tito appeared as the unheralded leader of the Communists in 1941, Joe says. He and Mihailovich fell out when it became clear that Mihailovich would work for nothing less than a return of the Yugoslav monarchy, while Tito professed to be interested in the establishment of a "people's government."

When Tito began to grow stronger than Mihailovich, Joe explained, the latter turned on him and accepted German aid in a vain effort to wipe out the Partisans. This move was made as a desperate gamble, rather than out of any love of the Germans. Mihailovich recognized the Germans and the Partisans both as blocks in his plans to restore the Yugoslav monarchy. He reasoned that the Germans would lose the war, and gambled that he could knock out the Partisans before the war ended. That bet cost him his life, Baskovich observed.

Tito eventually identified himself as Josip Broz. Rumor has it that when he met the parents of Broz, they failed to recognize him. Further rumor holds that the real Broz died fighting in the Spanish war, and that Tito is a Russian Communist capitalizing on the strength of the Croatian element to render his iron rule more palatable.

In Yugoslavia today, all forms of economic activity are thoroughly communized, Joe says, except for the smallest stores and shops. Even these have tight profit ceilings. There is much dissatisfaction, and today there are several underground units in operation. Notable among these are the Crusaders in Croatia and the Chetniks in Serbia. The Chetniks are carrying on guerilla activities.

It is virtually impossible for a Yugoslavian to leave the country. Only Joe's U. S. citizenship made it possible for him to be here.

Pigeons Evicted

Statesman Gets New Office

The receptionist took my hat.

I eased into a comfortable typewriting chair, turned on my flashlight, and scanned the luxurious interior of the room—a veritable Versailles palace among editorial offices. Above me hung an enormous light fixture, literally dangling like the sword of Damocles. Enclosing the elegant veranda, and exposing the vast panorama of Old Main was the spacious window—alias "the Periscope."

I then turned my attention to the receptionist, who was over in the corner leaning against the ceiling.

"Say," I said, "How does one become a denizen of this journalistic Olympus?"

"Did you walk up?" she asked.

"How else," I countered.

"You're in, then. We believe in Darwin. Survival of the fittest, you know," she explained.

"How about an office?" I queried.

"Here, take this unconverted clothes closet."

"But wait," I cried, "I'm only a newly-hatched member of the Fourth Estate. I have no right to live like a Russian ex-prince on the Riviera."

"Remember, you're an exile too—from Old Main," she answered.

Recalling the steep descent to the first floor, I decided to leave before dark. "If you get too tired," she said, "the Health Service is conveniently located on the ground floor."

"I said '30' (being a confirmed journalist by now) and then asked, 'By the way, what do you do around here?'"

"Rearrange desks," she replied, "It's almost as much fun as a jig-saw puzzle."

Fashion Highlights

By Phyllis Hansen

There are two important ways to look on the campus this year—and both depend on your waistline. The new "middy silhouette" . . . or should we say the old (for it is a revival of the 20's) . . . ignores your waistline, comes down in a svelte line over a multi-pleated skirt. Contrarily, the revival of the "Gibson look" has tended to give fashions narrow waistline emphasis and a rounded-hip effect.

Skirts of course are longer and fuller. Pleats are being used in new and novel ways, sometimes just on one side almost as a drape. Evening and afternoon skirts are often tiered—short circular tiers, or straight and gathered flounces.

Shoulders are softer, more graceful, conforming with the natural outline.

The foot is more delicate, more feminine. Fewer platforms, few nailheads. More high heels, a higher cut, more ankle straps.

Stockings, sheer cobwebs, are slightly darker by day, black or shadowy gray at night. Favored colors are the mysterious, dark, smoky shades because of the subtle tints and overtones that relate them to costume colors.

Tweeds are omnipresent for daytime wear. Versatile jersey is still holding its own in the popularity line-up. The taffetas for women who love the elegance of smooth rustling silk. Moire for afternoon; teas rich velvet for that "special" date.

Jewelry is divine—alive with brilliance and imagination. We couldn't resist a gilt choker with a line of rhinestones, like lace beading threaded with a sparkling ribbon. Another recent "eye-catcher" was a jewelry piece that fitted into the pocket of a suit. Shaped like a folded pocket handkerchief, it was gold, fringed with gold mesh embedded with tiny rhinestones. And we mustn't fail to mention a silver pin boasting riotous flame-colored poppies—pinned strategically to the shoulder of a midnight blue suit.

DAN DEVINE

Captain of the football team, president of his class in his junior and senior years, Student Council president—it's obvious that Dan Devine keeps himself pretty busy.

Dan began his college sports career at Duluth State Teachers college in 1942 when he played basketball with the '42-'43 team. He interrupted his studies that spring to enter the army air forces.

Returning to State in the winter of '45, Dan became captain of the cagers. Last year he played football and served as secretary-treasurer of the re-organized D club.

When asked if there were anything spectacular about his career, this man who usually boasts of being a Proctor high school graduate, smiled as only Dan can smile and said, "Only my lovely wife!"

Dan's wife, the former Joanne Brookhart, is also a student in her senior year at UMD.

New Cafeteria Will Serve 800

Lunch for 800 persons between the hours of 11 A. M. and 1 P. M. will be available to students and faculty when the new cafeteria opens in the basement of Torrance hall. The old dining room has been enlarged to accommodate 250 persons. It is lighted by 20 fluorescent light fixtures. Sound absorbent material forms the ceiling.

On the steam and refrigeration table extending across the west end of the room nearest the kitchen the day's menu will be offered on weekends as well as school days.

The 16 by 45-foot kitchen is equipped with three gas stoves and two large refrigerators. Six inch gas and water mains will replace the two-inch mains that supplied the former kitchen.

Two cold rooms, one that can be kept at zero temperature, and the other that may be regulated to a suitable temperature for vegetable storage will extend beyond the dishwashing room.

Other features of the unit are a garbage room, mechanical room, service entrance, and an office for the director.

Teachers Attend Convention in Cities

Miss Marie Linck, head of the home economics department, and Gordon O. Voss, new instructor in the industrial arts department, represented UMD at the Minnesota Education association convention in Minneapolis last Thursday and Friday.

Functional education for Minnesota's youth and adults was the theme of the discussions at the meeting.

Saturday morning Miss Linck attended the Department of Education for Vocational education meeting for home makers held in the Home Economics building at the University farm, St. Paul.

received his appointment here.

From the University of Florida, Dr. Leonard B. Wheat, Ph.D., Columbia university, N. Y., comes to UMD. Also a Ph.D. from Columbia university, Dr. Sandin, former principal of University school, Seattle, Wash., is chairman of the education division and principal of the Laboratory school here.

Two important appointments to the administration staff are those of Earl H. Hobe, business manager of the Duluth branch of University of Minnesota, and Dr. Palmer Graver, Ph. D., Northwestern university, student counselor.

On the social studies staff are Dr. James F. Maclear, Ph.D., University of Chicago, who teaches history; Dr. Lyda Belthuis, Ph.D., University of Michigan, teacher of geography; and Miss Maude Lindquist, who has returned from a leave of absence for study at the University of Minnesota.

J. B. Gerberich, Ohio State university, M.A., Kent State university, Ohio, member of the zoology department; Howard G. Hanson, M.A., University of Wisconsin, of the physics department, and Miss Myrtle C. Wagner, Duluth State Teachers college and University of Illinois, M.A., instructor in chemistry, and Gordon O. Voss, industrial arts, are additions to the science staff.

Thomas H. Ige, M.A., University of Wisconsin, will teach economics. Miss Flora Staple, Laboratory school supervisor last year, will teach in the education department of the university. Dr. George B. Strother, Ph.D., University of Indiana, is new on the psychology staff; Millard C. Walker, M.A., Columbia university, on the music staff; Dr. Lily Salz, Ph.D., University of Wisconsin, on the foreign languages staff. Mrs. Enid Nylander has taken over her husband's language classes during his leave to study in France. C. Lindsley Edson has returned to teach music after a leave of absence. Carroll B. Hanson, M.A., University of Iowa, is a member of the English department and will have charge of UMD publicity.

Miss V. Patricia Meredith, M.A., Columbia university, is foods instructor in the home economics department.

New instructors on the laboratory school faculty are Miss Doris Dickason, University of Iowa, art supervisor; Miss Thelma L. Johnson, University of Wisconsin, music supervisor; Robert E. Martin, University of Chicago, sixth grade instructor; Miss Betts Ann Roth, Peabody college, Nashville, Tenn., first grade instructor; and Miss Mildred McCaughey, University of Minnesota, fourth grade instructor.

Dr. Thomas Chamberlin, new head of the geography department, and Miss Clara Wiltse, of the art department staff, spoke at the Institute for Rural Teachers of St. Louis county at Hibbing, Sept. 25 and 26, respectively.

Bookstore Is Both

Convenient and Attractive

This is the first in a series of articles featuring our campus.

"Something new has been added." Besides the changed name, there are new students, instructors, courses, and even floors. What we had in mind, however, is the university bookstore in the basement of Washburn hall. For the convenience of the students and faculty, this long needed service started Sept. 29.

Although few persons may realize it, the new bookstore is something to be proud of. It is much larger and better stocked than those of many of the other universities. Before sales began the entire stock consisted of about 6,500 books. This was greatly reduced after two days by about 800 student customers and the issue to over 600 vets.

Under the guidance of Earl H. Hobe, business manager of the college, and the hard work of Miss Betty Arnold, bookstore manager, the project has gotten off to an auspicious start.

This can be best illustrated by the veterans' issue which lacks the confusion and time wasting methods of other years. Now all that the vets have to do is sign their statements, report to the issue room a few days later, and receive their books in a box individually made up for each veteran.

A unique feature of the bookstore is that it is almost completely run by student help, which now numbers eight. Practical experience is thus being gained in receiving, cataloging, pricing, stocking, and sales work. Student help was instrumental in setting up the store.

Books not now available are on order, and new ones are arriving every day.

Besides the sale of books, the store has a large supply department, sells candy, and has the school post office.

Store hours are from 8 a.m. to 5 p. m. Monday through Friday.

Dr. Graver Absent

Dr. Palmer Graver, director of student personnel services, has been confined to his home by illness since Sept. 29.

Dr. Graver is the latest in his family to contract the mumps. His two children were just recovering from the disease at the time that he became ill.

Clubs Slate Meetings

The Student Council will hold its next meeting on Thursday, Oct. 9, at 2 p. m. in room 207.

The Y club will meet tomorrow at noon in room 1.

The second meeting of the Kappa Omicron, social workers' fraternity, will be held in room 14, Washburn hall, tomorrow at 5 p. m.

Miss Charlotte Gibson, president of the Alpha Mu chapter Kappa Pi, national honorary art fraternity at UMD, presided over a dinner meeting of the organization held last night at the Casa del Norte. Plans for the year were outlined.

St. Cloud Defeats Bulldogs In Conference Opener

Crippled Duluth Team Yields Four Touchdowns to Charging Huskies

The UMD Bulldogs, battling at St. Cloud last Saturday, failed to get back into the win column. The St. Cloud Huskies overwhelmed a fighting Duluth eleven by a score of 26 to 7.

The Bulldogs drew first blood in the opening period when Bob Galinski caught a 49-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Ed Berry. Berry place-kicked the extra point to put Duluth in front 7 to 0.

The Huskies were held at bay for the remainder of the first period, but came back at the start of the second quarter as fullback Tony Stukel scored for St. Cloud. Talbert kicked the extra point to tie up the game. Wilbur Harrington made the Huskies' second touchdown, and at the half St. Cloud led by a 13 to 7 score.

Duluth got a bad break in the third quarter when end Pierre Mattei of the Huskies broke through the Bulldogs' forward wall to block Ed Berry's punt, caught the ball in mid air and ran for a touchdown. Talbert again kicked the extra point to give St. Cloud a comfortable 20 to 7 lead.

Fate in the form of another bad break stayed with the Bulldogs in the closing chapter, as Russ Hadden intercepted a Duluth pass. He then plunged into the end zone from the one-yard line for the Huskies' final score.

For the record, the Huskies outplayed the Bulldogs in all departments except passing. Duluth completed four out of nine passes for a gain of 132 yards.

New Coach Arrives To Supervise UMD Basketball Team

The dusty old welcome mat of the athletic department here at UMD has come out of retirement. Head coach Lloyd Peterson led the welcome chorus, which was sung by the entire student body and faculty. Long in need of reinforcements, the overburdened coaching staff has found a pair of capable shoulders to help carry the load. Joseph S. Gerlach, who will assume the duties of head basketball coach and assistant football coach, is the valuable addition.

Mr. Gerlach hails from Schullsburg, Wis., and comes to Duluth by way of Fairbanks, Alaska, Dickinson, North Dakota, the University of Illinois, and Elmhurst, Illinois.

While at the University of Alaska, in Fairbanks, he coached his basketball teams to a territory co-championship in 1940 and a championship in 1942. From Fairbanks, Mr. Gerlach moved to Dickinson State Teachers college in Dickinson, N. D. to coach his 1943 and '44 football teams into a pair of conference co-championships. His cagers copped conference titles in 1944 and '45.

Coach Gerlach is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin with an M.S. degree.

Intramural Sports Program Planned; Attendance Urged

Because of increased enrollment the intramural sports program is expected to have a greater number of participants than ever before. A bang-up basketball league wound up last year's intramural sports program. An even more enthusiastic response to basketball is expected this year when the call is posted on the physical education bulletin board outside the gym door.

Right now the accent is on fall sports. Ward Wells, the director, will conduct an intramural touch football tournament if the response to the call is great enough and if the snow doesn't come too soon. Volleyball and badminton are also in the offing for the fall season.

Students who do not participate in the regular athletic program are urged to take part in the intramural sports program. Individuals or groups of individuals may sign up with Mr. Wells. A list for each is posted on the physical education bulletin board.

UMD Gets Win; Suffers Loss

Bulldogs Whitewash Northland, 31-0; Lose to Strong Superior Gridders

The UMD Bulldogs won their opening game of the 1947 football season before a meager crowd of 500 fans Sept. 20, when they trounced Northland college of Ashland 31 to 0 on a rain-soaked Ordean field.

The lighter and greener Hill-toppers could not match the power and speed displayed by the Green and Gold. The Bulldog scoring was evenly distributed as Ed Berry made two touchdowns and Bob Galinski, Seth Phillips, and Kenny Turnquist each got one. The Bulldogs had little success in their extra point attempt however, making but one out of five. Big Wes Olson booted that one after the fourth touchdown.

Berry and Galinski scored in the first half climaxing 60-yard drives. Seth Phillips scored again for the Bulldogs in the third quarter when he made a turning-twisting run from the Topper 15-yard line. Ed Berry got his second six-pointer on an end run, following a fumble recovery by Jack Phillips. Kenny Turnquist highlighted the afternoon's scoring in the last period when he intercepted a deflected Ashland pass and raced 82 yards for a touchdown.

Superior's Yellowjackets, the Bulldog's age-old rival from across the bay, handed the UMD eleven their initial setback of the football season by a score of 19 to 0 Sept. 20 in a Friday night arc-light contest at Gates Field in Superior.

A capacity crowd of 3,500 fans witnessed the season opener of the Yellowjackets, who gave all indications of being the strongest college team in this region. A veteran studded Superior team, bolstered by the addition of two members of the U of Wisconsin B team, made the going for the Bulldogs extremely rough.

Superior scored in the first period when Moselle plunged over from the one-yard line ending a 65-yard drive. Pozeka converted for the game's only extra point. A touchdown pass to Thomas in the third quarter, and another six-point toss to Dodge in the final period completed the Yellowjackets scoring.

'D' Club Maps Plans

October second marked the D club's first meeting of the fall term. Highlights on the agenda were the appointments of: Tom Thebarga, chairman of the Athletics Queen election; John Braff, in charge of the bonfire in Chester Bowl; Homecoming parade chairman—Jim Hastings, to receive student entries for floats.

BULLDOGMA

BY GEORGE McNAMARA

Football fever again, another season of jarring blocks, crushing tackles and cheers of faithful fans is well under way. Our own Bulldogs have already tasted both defeat and victory, and while one was sweet the other was bitter as only a Superior defeat can be bitter.

This year, Pete is faced with his usual problem of replacing the injured. Already injuries have hampered the play of such dependable players as Captain Danny Devine, who pulled a ligament in his right knee; Ed Berry, who has dislocated a vertebra; Jim Erickson and Ed Hill, both out with badly sprained ankles; Lloyd Green, a victim of the flu; Don Jann, whose vaccination became infected and George Petrich, with a simple fracture of his ankle. Ken Turnquist will be out of action for some time with a broken wrist, and Dave Persha has an injured back.

It is my opinion that with the squad that Pete has out this year, it will be only the injuries that will prevent them from regaining their hold on the conference championship. Let it be known now, however, that there won't be a team on the Bulldog schedule that won't know that it has been in a rough game. If you have any doubts about this, just stroll into the opponent's locker-room after a game.

DID YOU KNOW DEPARTMENT

That Mr. Peterson is starting his seventeenth year at this school. That four of the five starting players on last year's crackerjack Central high basketball team are enrolled at State, namely, Mike Peterson, Merle Johnson, Jim Doherty and Kenny Turnquist. That Paul Nace and Kenny Sunnarborg of Denfeld's state championship basketball team also are enrolled in school. This should help considerably in the Bulldogs' first game against University of Minnesota Gophers—That there are ten different towns represented on this year's UMD football team.
